The Computer Bichitra is a leading ICT magazine of Bangladesh. In 2007, it proudly celebrates its 12th anniversary of publication.

Bangladesh Computer Samity (BCS), the main ICT association in Bangladesh, has bestowed a special award to Computer Bichitra for its unique contributions to the development of ICT sector of the country.

Earlier this year, Computer Bichitra has been awarded as the best ICT magazine of the decade by a leading NGO of the country.

At home, Computer Bichitra was the Media Partner of Ingram Micro show 2004, an international ICT product show and Internet Fair 2004 & 2005, the largest Internet related fair organized by Internet Service Provider Association of Bangladesh (ISPAB).

Computer Bichitra always gives the international ICT arena equal treatment to the local industry in Bangladesh.

The people who were behind the establishment of Computer Bichitra wanted to make the magazine an important platform for all the stakeholders of the ICT arena in Bangladesh.

2006 Nobel Peace Laureate, one of the 30 all time Entrepreneurs declared by the World famous Business Week, and founder of the Grameen Bank Professor Dr. Muhmmad Yunus is the Chief Advisor of the Computer Bichitra. While the eminent scientist, researcher in ex-Bell Lab`s Professor Dr. Muhammad Jafar Iqbal is the Advisory Editor.

Our present Executive Editor B. M. Inam Lenin is the founder president of Bangladesh ICT Journalists Unity (BICTJU). He was also a contributor to the some ruptured vernacular daily newspapers and Coordinator of two popular TV Talk Show- Shamokal & Glotable.

In 1999 he started an ICT biased weekly magazine program `COMPUTER PROJUKTI` in ATN Bangla, most popular TV channel in the country.

Mr. Lenin was made the advisor of Microsoft, Bangladesh. In 2006, Lenin became a member of UN e-Waste International committee`s working group member.

The Computer Bichitra was named the Official Media of Infocom 2004, 2005, 2006 and 2007-2008 consecutively in Bangladesh.
